

SINGAPORE BUSINESS LEADERS PROGRAMME

The Singapore Business Leaders Programme (SBLP) is Asia's premier senior business leaders' programme. It was first announced in 2009 by Singapore Prime Minister, Lee Hsien Loong, as a leadership development programme that would cater to senior business executives expecting to take on regional or global responsibilities.

Since its first run in May 2011, the SBLP has featured an illustrious list of speakers such as the Presidents and CEOs of global and regional companies as well as political leaders including the late Minister Mentor Lee Kuan Yew, who shared his thoughts on key political, economic, and social developments across Asia.

THE SBLP EXPERIENCE

✔ SBLP connects people.

Networking opportunities are built into the programme for the forging of strong ties and collaboration among the participants, and with the faculty. Relationship building across industries and geographies will not end with the week. Participants will become part of an exclusive alumni network to continue their learning journey.

✔ SBLP connects ideas.

Multiple perspectives and trends are distilled with a focus on the business applications of each participant. The outcome of this focus is alignment at personal, organisational and societal levels. The intersection of leading-edge thinking and action agendas enables businesses and their leaders to tap into opportunities while navigating challenges in a diverse and complex Asia.

SBLP PARTICIPANT EXPERIENCE

The course has really opened up my mind to what are some of the opportunities there are, and the experiences that people have had. I think some of the common experiences that we share make me feel that I'm not alone in this leadership journey. Everyone, if given the opportunity, must come and attend the Singapore Business Leaders' Programme.

I am really glad that I took the time off to attend this programme. This might be the best programme that I have attended so far. I speak genuinely from the heart. I think the way the whole programme has been organised, the kind of speakers that we saw, and the themes are just so overwhelming. Best of all, I got to meet many talented and like-minded individuals from all over the world. These will become my new friends.

My experience at SBLP has been outstanding. I came here with the expectation of meeting a group of high level executives from diverse industries. My expectations however have been exceeded completely. I obtained insights from various speakers which I can share with my peers, senior leaders and others in the organisation.

SBLP is one of the greatest programmes that I have ever experienced. What we have learnt from this course is not only just the tools, perspectives, methodologies, but more importantly, the courage, the sense of mission that we try to be the leader to lead the people in your organisations.

It's been a really unique experience to be able to take time out to really immerse yourself in self-development, self-reflection, and I've been really appreciative and grateful for the opportunity to be at the SBLP. It's been absolutely fantastic!
